OVERVIEW

Jack Cahill practices in the Litigation Department at Modrall Sperling, where he assists with matters involving personal injury claims, commercial disputes and real estate.

Originally from Arizona, Jack attended Northern Arizona University for his undergraduate degree in Secondary Education. After working briefly in secondary education, Jack then attended Arizona State University for law school, where he received his J.D. magna cum laude.

While in law school, Jack served as the Managing Editor for the Arizona State Law Journal and gained valuable experience as an intern for the Arizona Attorney General Office's Consumer Protection Division.

When Jack is not practicing law, he enjoys hiking, long-distance running, swimming, and skiing.
